

Tojo Branded Leader of War Against U. S.

Tokyo, Nov. 5 — (UP) — The Far East war crimes tribunal today branded former Premier Hideki Tojo as the leader of Japan's war in China, which the tribunal's judgment said led straight to the attack on the United States and Britain.

The court said Tojo, as an army lieutenant general and vice minister of war from 1938 to 1940, resisted any attempts to mediate the China war through German representatives so that Japan could be strengthened for an attack on Russia.

The tribunal's judgment, read by tribunal president Sir William Webb, found the Japanese army bearing virtually sole guilt for the Pacific war through a plot that included lying to Emperor Hirohito. Tojo, in 1938 insisted on pushing the war in China, the court found, despite general staff fears that the army would become bogged down there.

In the last quarter of 1937 the army general staff became increasingly concerned lest the growing war in China should frustrate the major aims of the army's plan, the judgment said.

These aims, as outlined yesterday, were to obtain a foothold on the Asiatic continent and then spread through the South Seas where America, and Britain already had established bases.

So alarmed did military leaders become, again acting on their own initiative, they sought German mediation of the dispute, the judgment went on.

One of the most influential factions within the army which determined to resist any attempts to compromise the war in China, Lt. Gen. Tojo, vice minister of war, was the champion of this standpoint.

One of the first other Japanese war leaders on the front expected to learn their fate early next week when the judgment announcing the verdicts and sentences.

Race Issue Confronts Congress

Washington, Nov. 5 — (AP) — An outright race issue confronts the new Democratic majority of the House. A Negro is in line to head a major committee of Congress.

It is Rep. William L. Dawson of Illinois, Georgia-born, Chicago attorney who was re-elected Tuesday to his fourth term.

Dawson actually is only the second ranking Democrat on the executive committee of the House. But the No. 1 man—Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts—is slated to return to his job of majority leader. And the majority leader customarily does not have any committee assignments.

Democratic committee assignments in the House are arranged by the party's members of the Ways and Means Committee. This group's recommendations are submitted to a caucus of all House Democrats, then to the entire House.

Almost without exception, chairmanships are decided on committee seniority, that is, on how long a member has been on the committee, rather than how long he has been in Congress.

If tradition is followed in his case, Dawson will be the first modern-day Negro congressman to head an important regular committee. The only other present Negro House member is Rep. Adam C. Powell, Jr., of New York who won reelection to his third term in the Democratic and American Labor party tickets. He ranks fifth on the Labor Committee.

The expenditures committee has broad authority to look into all the executive departments of the government. Its jurisdiction covers any activity involving the spending of federal money.

Under the chairmanship of Republican Clare E. Hoffman of Michigan, this committee during the past 4 years has probed the State, Commerce, Justice, and Agriculture Departments, as well as the Federal Communications Commission and housing agencies.

No Negro cells are added to the human body after birth.

"United America" and he chose to ignore the president's demand that he speak out on the issues.

Several times, especially during the latter part of the campaign, some of the Dewey people arrived at the Dewey headquarters and back at Mr. Truman.

But those opposed went out. Dewey did take a hard swat at the Democrats' tactics, but he wound up saying:

"That is the kind of campaign I refuse to wage."

There is no doubt there would be some changes made if Dewey had to do it again.

ment "is exactly what Washington and Jefferson did, thereby creating the United States of America."

In the first remark he apparently went on to believe that Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist communism is the same thing as the communist sharing and ownership which Christ preached and his contemporary followers practiced, and which have been a part of the human race before and after the beginning of Christianity.

Mr. Shaw knows that Christianity is basically a spiritual way of life, and that Marxism is a doctrine of materialism. He knows that economic theory is only one offshoot of Christian teaching, while it is the foundation of Marxism.

He knows that Christianity advocates freedom of choice, by which one may follow a course of life to the extent the course of his own destiny. He knows that Marxism clings to the concept of "economic determinism," in which not only social changes but man's will are shown by economic environment.

Finally it is clear to a far lesser mind than Mr. Shaw's that there is no connection between the Christian precepts of faith, hope and charity, and the precepts of revolution, tyranny and terrorism in Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist communism. Yet Mr. Shaw chides "American legislators, ostensibly Christians," who "don't read the Bible, much less the Marx—as if Marx and the Bible taught the same gospel!"

As for the Shavian comparison between Washington, Jefferson and today's American Communist, one would think that its author was ignorant of American history. Washington and Jefferson represented colonists who were the victims of rank discrimination and broken promises. Their revolution was a war of independence against the attempt to enforce unjust laws and bayonets.

American Communist revolutionists enjoy all the rights and privileges of their fellow citizens. They are not discriminated against as a party or class. They do share with their fellow citizens the obligation of allegiance to their own government. This obligation they renounce to meet. Instead they work as agents of a foreign power, for the overthrow of the very government that guarantees them their heritage of rights and freedom.

The argument that "Christ was a Communist" and "Washington was a Communist" has been used for years on the gullible to persuade them of Marxism's kinship to Christianity and democracy. It is a shame to see Mr. Shaw, a non-revolutionary old Socialist, trying to resuscitate the argument of the American people on the strength of his distinguished name.

were treated for minor injuries. The Corlith, Miss. Daily Corinthian reported that at nearby Riley, Miss. Mr. E. Young, 68, in a Ripley hospital after the storm struck there, and that 13 others were reported injured. The news paper said six homes were demolished and several barns blown down.

A freak twister hit five miles south of Vicksburg, destroyed a barn, uprooted trees and damaged homes. No injuries were reported.

2000 Left Homeless in California

Los Angeles, Nov. 5 — (AP) — Two fires—one destroying scores of homes and forcing hundreds to be smoldered over 16,000 brush acres of drought-stricken California today.

Some 2,000 more residents of Topanga canyon were prepared to evacuate if winds again whipped up the mountain area blaze near the Pacific ocean.

The other fire inland in the Santa Ana district, still raged out of control on two 10-mile fronts, forcing the closing of State Highway 10.

Deaths were reported although some 20 cases of minor injuries and burns were treated at the Topanga canyon fire.

The Topanga blaze was brought to a temporary standstill last night by back-firing, but fire fighters feared wind might arise again at daybreak to fan the flames southward toward the 400-home community of Fearnwood.

Approximately 600 men were on the line in the canyon, with nearly 6,000 acres already blackened. North of Santa Ana, about 1,000 men appeared to be making slight headway against fire lashing out over a 1,000-acre area.

The Topanga fire in the Santa Monica mountains, due west of Los Angeles, was spurred by a rare 30-mile Santa Ana wind blowing from the dry San Fernando Valley to the ocean. It came so suddenly hundreds of residents had to flee, leaving belongings behind.

Los Angeles county fire wardens estimated some 55 homes—mostly small frame dwellings—were destroyed, with perhaps that many more damaged. Evacuated were the tiny communities of Silver Park, Topanga woods, Topanga flat and Trippett ranch.

Flames reached to within a half mile of Fearnwood before they were checked. By night, residents were alerted to be ready to leave.

Fire officials said the wind usually whips up at sunrise in the canyon and a large crew was kept on duty. County equipment was augmented by 20 S. West Service rigs and 17 city units from Los Angeles, 20 miles away.

All telephone lines between Riverside and Santa Ana were out.

weight with their colleagues on Capitol Hill. Congressional sources said that when the time comes, both men will urge on the president a patient, "piecemeal" legislative program rather than a sweeping "must-pass" bill.

Barkley must sit the ground for a new "team-play" attitude when he joins Mr. Truman for a Florida vacation on Sunday. When they return, Congressional officials expect that Barkley and other Democratic leaders will be called in for conferences on the legislative program.

One straw in the wind is the lack of any promise from Mr. Truman to "full partnership" in the administration for Barkley, perhaps the ministerial offer Gov. Earl Warren by GOP Nominee Thomas E. Dewey. Nor has Barkley asked such a commitment. His role, it appears, will be that of a foreign power, and his chief responsibility that of keeping legislative machinery well greased.

Almost complete returns tabulated by United Press showed Mr. Truman will have a Congress more solidly Democratic than at any time since 1943.

There will be at least 262 Democrats in the House, 171 Republicans and a single American Labor Party member. The Senate will line up with Democrats having a 54 to 42 edge. But once Congress organizes itself, party lines probably will be split on many votes.

That means that Mr. Truman must mustered his full strength in Congress, particularly when opposed by the familiar coalition of conservative Southern Democrats and Republicans.

It is generally conceded that Mr. Truman will need full voting strength to make good on his campaign pledges. They include, besides labor law repeal and civil rights legislation, a long-range government sponsored housing program, lowest cost medical care, continued rent controls, a higher minimum wage and broadened government aids to education and the farmer.

The pulling and hauling over what comes first has already started.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D., La., said he will introduce in the Senate new public housing and slum clearance legislation for low-income families early in the next session. Rep. T. Hale Boggs, D., La., plans to offer a similar measure in the House. This issue alone promises some real fireworks.

Market Report

NEW YORK COTTON

New York, Nov. 5 — (AP) — Cotton futures moved lower today under pressure of liquidation and profit taking. The market was influenced partly by weakness in securities and declined on technical reasons.

Following Thursday's sharp advance, losses extended a little more than $1 a bale before the market recovered partially.

Private advices said that mill buying of spot cotton had slackened, but spinners and warehouses buying cotton made for the government loan sold a fair amount of the staple during the day.

Producers were reported placing most of their cotton in late trading.

The upturn continued in late trading.

Futures closed 25 cents a bale higher to 40 cents lower than the previous close.

Japan Has Not Yet Reached Stability But Is Rock-Ribbed Compared to China

By RUSSELL BRINS

(For DeWitt MacKenzie)
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Tokyo — Japan has not yet reached stability, but it appears almost rock-ribbed by comparison with China.

This is the conclusion I drew from a month's vacation on the continent. The din of clamorous China was still in my ears on returning to the outward calm of this occupied country.

The differences between the two countries are even greater than they were a year ago, when I made another swing across China.

In Japan the ideological war is continuous and so are the battles for political power. But under the occupation they are being fought in the bloodless arenas of argument and political maneuvering.

Even in Shanghai and Hong Kong, far from China's civil war zone, it is impossible to escape the violence of this struggle.

The fall of Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, increased the tension and apprehension in south China.

The Japanese preface their disputes with a recapitulation of their new civil rights, even though they still do not appear to understand them fully. Even the Communists talk about these rights.

But in Shanghai the people are in fear of the secret police and the retroactive laws which are designed to enforce the new economic program of austerity and stability.

Japanese at times appear restless under the occupation. But none except the Communists show any marked anti-foreign feelings or betray any attitude which might jeopardize American aid. Foreign businessmen are extremely confident of a future without government controls.

In Shanghai the hostility toward foreigners seems to be part of the atmosphere. American businessmen in China are extremely pessimistic. They say Chinese policies are crippling them, even though the Chinese themselves admit they need both foreign business and foreign help.

The Japanese have just been shocked by a bribery scandal amounting to $10,000,000 (J. S.). This is considerable, but it appears minute alongside the corruption of many Chinese officials.

Japanese industrial production is increasing, despite many complications. War and unrest have restricted China's industrial output, which always has been smaller than Japan's.

As for inflation, prices of essentials remain fairly stable in Japan. Everyone knows what happened in China before the government took steps to check runaway inflation. Now there are signs the new gold yuan, issued as a stabilizer, is beginning to skip.

The differences carry over into the physical appearances of the cities and the attitude of their inhabitants.

Japan's confident people are slowly rebuilding their bombed metropolitan centers.

But the continuing deterioration of Shanghai's towering buildings — untouched by war — and the increased restlessness are saddening to one who knew that city before the war.

Labor Leaders Claim Major Assistance

Washington, Nov. 3 — (AP) — Labor leaders today claimed a major assist in the heavy vote for the Democratic party in the Presidential election.

They said record numbers of workers had joined with farmers and small businessmen in support of the Democratic party's "four big pledges" to deal with inflation, housing, civil rights and repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Top union leaders immediately began building up hopes for an early fulfillment of those pledges — a theme the White House picked up and made a centerpiece of its campaign.

Jack Kroll, director of the CIO's Political Action Committee, said: "The people of America have given their mandate. They look to the Democratic party to carry out its platform."

And, speaking about the Taft-Hartley repeal pledge, George Meany, treasurer of the AFL's labor league for political education, said:

"That's our fight and we mean to continue it. If we don't get it done now, we're going to look for it to 1950."

With few exceptions, labor or ganizations worked against the Republican candidate because the GOP-controlled Congress wrote the new labor relations act into law over Mr. Truman's veto.

That the unions' rank and file had about eight votes their lead was evident in coast-to-coast returns from yesterday's election.

Said Meany: "We worked hard and we feel we were instrumental in changing 50 representatives in Congress and 50 on the basis of the Taft-Hartley act."

Among the early Senate casualties who voted for the Taft-Hartley law were Republican Senators C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois, Chapman Revercomb of West Virginia and George A. Wilson of Iowa.

On the other hand, six Senate supporters of the labor law are assured new terms. All are Southerners and three were unopposed.

But who's been feeding it, you or she?

She gave him a look of blank bewilderment. "Why? I don't know. She never said anything to me. She never told me to do it. I belong to her. I thought maybe she don't want nobody but herself to feed it."

"She must have thought you were," he frowned, puzzled. "But, funny she didn't ask if you were. I'll hold it in my hand. Go get it good water."

They had it back in the cage, somewhat revived, and were still busy watching it, when Julia came into the room, the long-winded toilette that had been occupying her, apparently, for the last concluded. She came toward him, tilted up her face, and kissed him dutifully.

"I'm going shopping, Lou dear. Can you spare me for an hour or so? Then without waiting for the permission, she went on toward the opposite door.

"Oh, by the way, Julia— he had to call after her, to hall her. She stopped and turned, sweetly, obedient. "Yes, dear."

"We found Dicky Bird nearly dead just now."

"He going to be all right, honey," Aunt Sarah quickly interjected. "They ain't nothing, man the nurse back to health. You just watch, he going to be all right."

"Is he?" she said shortly.

She began to mold her glove to her hand with an air of hauteur. Unnoticed, the subject had changed. "I do hope I don't have a hard time finding a carriage. Always, just when you want them, there's not one to be had."

She turned full attention to Dicky Bird, a big, fat, brown, in Ottley's window I simply must have. I hope somebody hasn't already taken it away from there. May be."

He glowed at this flattering deference of seeking his permission. "Of course! Have it by all means, bless your heart."

She gave a ray little flourish to ward the door, swept it open. "It's a lovely name. She blew him a kiss from the open doorway."

The door closed, and the room dimmed again somewhat.

Aunt Sarah was still standing beside the cage. "I sure enough spotted her," she came over and took a look at him, she said perceptively. "Kerkerk she ain't so fond of him no more."

"She must be. She brought him to the way down from St. Louis with her, during an absence. I noticed, eyes flicked in his newspaper once more."

"Maybe she done change, don't care 'bout him no more."

A moment passed. Several, in fact, Durand's attention remained focused on the printed sheet before him.

Then suddenly he stopped reading. His eyes left the paper abruptly, stared over its top.

Not at anything in particular, just to abstract thought.

Sunday School Lesson

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The problem of suffering has been a puzzling one ever since men began to think.

particularly occupied the minds of the writers who gave us the Bible, and whose dissection in life and literature is the supremacy of their interest in moral and spiritual values.

They early made a distinction between good and evil in thought and conduct. Their first solution of the matter of suffering and welfare was in the broad observation that good conduct made for happiness and well-being, while evil conduct brought its consequences, expressed in the warning, "Be sure your sin will find you out."

In a general way this conclusion is true and is upheld in experience. But more thoughtful observers soon perceived that the simple equations — good living equals happiness and welfare, and evil living equals evil consequences did not fit every case. In fact, life offered wide and deep exceptions.

Similarly observers saw that prophets who stood for God and right often suffered for their convictions, and cruel persecutions were often inflicted on clergymen whose faith and zeal for righteousness were strong and pure.

It was obvious that the easy, simple solutions of the problem of suffering did not square with the facts, or at least with all of the facts.

The first effective challenge to that simple solution came in the great drama, the Book of Job. It is important to remember that it is a drama, in which various characters are speaking.

The late Professor Moulton, in his Modern Readers' Bible, arranged the book in its dramatic form. He pictured an ordinary rector turning to the Book of Job and accepting possibly some word of Eliphaz, Bildad, or Elihu, "because it was in the Bible," not realizing that the Lord, speaking later in the drama, declared that not one of them had spoken the truth.

The drama of Job is skillfully set to emphasize the problem of a man, beset by severe afflictions, who refused to accept the easy solutions of his friends and admit a guilt of which he is not conscious.

What, then, does the Book of Job offer as a solution of this problem of suffering? The answer with the guilty? Nothing but the solution of faith, the placing of the mystery of suffering in the deeper mystery of the world and life, and the faith in the justice of all the Earth will do right.

This is reaffirmed in the assurance of Jesus concerning God's love and care — "Not a sparrow falls to the ground without your Father." But it is still a matter of faith, for there is still the mystery of why the sparrow falls. But Job found a real solution in faith.

Approximately 6,500 Indians still live in New York state, on eight reservations where tribal customs are largely observed.

Only Daughter's Duty

Dear Miss Dix: I am an only daughter, 23 years old. I have been offered the chance of my life to gratify my ambition and do the work I have fitted myself to do, but I accept this opportunity I will have to leave home. Both my mother and father are about to have a fit at the mere thought of my doing so.

What is the duty of an only daughter to her parents? What would you advise me to do?

BEATRICE H.

Answer: I believe in children doing their duty by their parents and treating them with all due affection, respect and consideration, but fathers and mothers have no right to ask their boys and girls to sacrifice their lives for them nor to give up their careers for their whims.

My advice to you is to get up and go. Don't hesitate to follow where fortune beckons you. Opportunity has a way of passing us when we don't respond promptly to it. When she knocks at our door the first time.

Duty is to Self

You are young. You have your life still before you. They are old. Their careers are sealed. You probably have years ahead in which to achieve things. Their day's work is practically over. Just looking at it from any standpoint, it isn't fair to you that you should give up all that you have to do for them for the sake of giving them the pleasure of your company.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a woman 25 years old, married to a man of 35 I have been married for about five years and during that time I have been utterly miserable due to my husband's insane jealousy. I can't go to a dance unless I sit

Clear Path for European Program

Washington, Nov. 4 — (UP) — American plans to rearm Europe for a boost today from President Truman's election in the defeat of many of its Congress who fought his foreign policy.

The hard core of opposition to U. S. foreign spending for recovery aid in arms appeared to be shattered by the defeat of seven senators and a dozen House members. Indications are that the administration now will speed work on plans for a military defense alliance with Western Europe and for lend-lease shipment of arms to non-Communist nations.

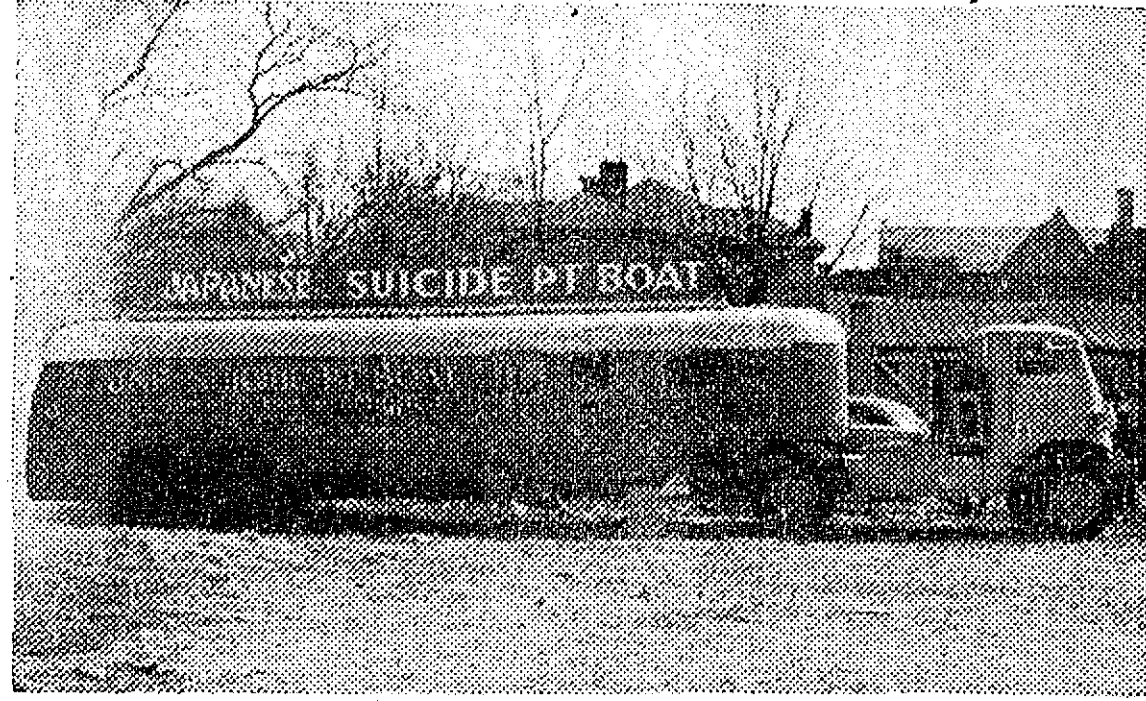

Foreign policy planners said the Democratic election sweep eliminated a potentially dangerous interim period in the conduct of foreign affairs. They had been fearful that Russia, if the Republicans won, might make an aggressive move in Europe during the change-over in administrations.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican foreign policy leader, will be replaced as foreign relations committee chairman by white-maned Sen. Tom Connally of Texas. And Sol Bloom of New York will shift to places with Chairman Charles McNary, R., N. J., of the House Foreign Affairs committee.

But these changes will not have much effect on foreign policy. The team of Vandenberg, Connally, Bloom and McNary has been in operation since the United Nations charter was signed in San Francisco in 1945. The outgoing and incoming chairmen talk alike and think alike on foreign policy matters.

Navy Club to Bring Jap Exhibit to Hope

One of Japan's suicide PT boats will be exhibited in Hope next Thursday, Nov. 11.

This fantastic weapon was known in Japan as the "Shinyotei," which translated means, earth rocking ocean boat. It was developed by the Japanese as part of the famed kamikaze plan made for the defense of their home islands and it was used with devastating effect on American ships at Okinawa.

This suicide boat is 18 ft. long and is powered by a Japanese built valve-in-head engine. It was capable of speeds up to 50 MPH. Loaded in the bow was a 675 pound anti-submarine depth bomb which could be detonated by a contact or a time fuse. The boat was expected to join his ancestors in the fulfillment of his mission.

Also on exhibit is a set of the 32 pound shoes that were locked on the suicide pilots feet to insure his willingness to carry out his suicide assignment.

The PT boat was captured intact at Amami Oshima in the Ryuku Islands. It was brought to this country by the Navy League, ment for test and observation. It is now on loan to the Navy Club of U. S. A. and is being toured nationally by them.

This exhibit is open to the public. There is no admission charge, however, voluntary donations are gratefully accepted and funds so raised help the Navy Club continue its welfare and rehabilitation program.

The U. S. A. is an accredited non-profit veterans organization. It was incorporated by Act of Congress in 1940 and is dedicated to the welfare and rehabilitation of Naval personnel of all wars. Interesting trophies will be exhibited in a specially built trailer located at 2nd and Main from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

You are now or have served in any branch of the Naval Service be sure to sign the visitors log after viewing the exhibit.

and Eaton will be strengthened rather than weakened by the defeat of many of the party colleagues. Among congressmen rejected at the polls Tuesday were many who fought hard against the non political foreign policy program.

With the election over, observers expected:

1. Clear sailing for renewal of the Marshall Plan with more money.
2. Probable early final recognition plus substantial U. S. loans for Greece.
3. Continuation of the Greece-Trukey "quarantine Communism" program at least until civil warfare can be ended in Greece.
4. Renewed efforts to get long-term renewal of the tariff-cutting reciprocal trade agreements program without restrictions.
5. Continued support for the United Nations in all its activities.

Everybody Surprised at Election

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

United Press Staff Correspondent

As he lugged the last empty champagne bottle out of Democratic headquarters in New York's Biltmore Hotel, the janitor said for the 17th time, "My gosh, Truman won."

Other people said it in other words. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said he was "just as surprised as anybody else." Margaret Truman said she and her mother were "simply overwhelmed."

The professional poll takers talked at more length. But what they said boiled down to "we were wrong."

Not even the professional Democrats had got it just right. National Chairman J. Howard McGrath had indicated he doubted Mr. Truman could win unless 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 votes were cast. The actual total was near 47,000,000 and the president won anyway.

Only Mr. Truman had been right all the way. He said over and over again that he would win.

But Mr. Truman wasn't giving away any secrets about his forecasting methods. He just said he was "happy, very happy" that he had been right. He didn't seem a bit surprised.

A lot of people were trying hard to explain two things: (1) Why had the president won, and (2) why none of the dopsters thought he would.

President-elect Truman's victory was a surprise to many. George L. Gallup and Philip M. Meyer made long statements. Gallup had said Dewey would win with 49.5 per cent of the popular vote. Mr. Truman getting 44.3. Meyer's forecast was 52.2 per cent for Dewey and 47.1 for Truman. Mr. Truman got about 49.9 per cent and Dewey 48.8.

Dr. Gallup's explanation was that it was the kind of close election that happens once in a generation and is a nightmare to poll-takers.

Roper nominated Mr. Truman for dean of forecasters. The president, he said, turned out to be a far better predictor than the professional pollsters, politicians and pundits. As for Roper:

Seems Clear That U. S. Can't Save China in Same Way That Greece Is Being Helped

By DEWITT MACKENIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Yesterday in discussing the Chinese Communists' great military victory in Manchuria, I said that this also was a triumph for Russia and that it vastly strengthened the hand of Moscow in its world revolution for the spread of the ism.

In this connection I branded as bunk the claim that the Chinese Reds are just humble Agrarians without any Soviet affiliation. We return to the subject again because of its great importance to the nations which are battling communism, and because we have had a fresh development which gives indisputable proof of the falsity of the Agrarian tale.

Mao Tze-Tung, chairman of the Chinese Communist party, has written a report of the Red success in China for the bulletin of the Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) which has headquarters in Bucharest, Romania. The Cominform is generally accepted by observers to be the successor to the Comintern, which was "abolished" by Moscow in 1923 because of hostility of the Western powers to it.

So Mao Tze-Tung reports to the Cominform, which is the voice of Moscow. He says in his account (which presumably was written before the fall of Mukden, capital of Manchuria) that his forces occupy 907,000 square miles of territory, or about 24.5 per cent of the total area of China. He also claims that 168,000,000 people, or some 35 per cent of China's population, are under Communist rule.

Whether his figures are accurate, the fact remains that the Chinese Communists threaten to overrun all China, thus presenting Russia with a base which might well dominate the entire Orient. The Nationalist China of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is pretty well shot to pieces — politically, economically and militarily. And it looks to America to rescue it.

These circumstances give rise to some cogent questions: How far should the United States go in trying to rescue China? Assuming that we do, to be more or less money down the drain pipe, should we go all out in aid at huge expense?

One would think these points would have to come up for review and decision by Uncle Sam in the near future. This doesn't close the list of questions, because the query frequently is raised as to why we should support a Chinese totalitarian regime in a fight against Russian totalitarianism? I believe we must look to it to China partly as a matter of expedience rather than as a political ideal. Opponents of Russian communism hold that it is the greatest menace mankind ever has faced. Thus we help China, not because we approve of her political set up but because we like Bolshevism the less.

As regards the last question I sumably the cost of our intervention in China will come up for official review in due course. As I see it that won't necessarily involve adopting one of two extreme courses—pulling out of China altogether or going all-out with mountains of aid. Without trying to make predictions, one can foresee the possibility of a middle course of relatively moderate aid being continued until the situation ironed out itself further. There has been no indication that we should consider abandoning China to the Reds.

What seems equally clear, however, is that the United States can't save China for the Nationalists as we have maintained the present government in Greece. The Greek task is infinitesimal as compared with that involving mighty China.

All the ruminants, or cud-chewers, namely, cattle, sheep, goats, deer, and antelope, are invariably get up with their hind legs first, while other large quadrupeds use the opposite procedure with forelegs first.

wrong. The thing that bothers me most is that at this moment I don't know why I was wrong. But I certainly propose to find out."

Roper and some others thought perhaps organized labor, fighting against the Taft-Hartley act which Mr. Truman would repeal, had "turned the tables."

But few union leaders or members had exhibited any such cause confidence in victory. Take Lee Tindle, for example. Tindle is the engineer Dewey called a "lunatic" because he backed the Republican campaign train into a crowd at Beacon Hill.

"I was surprised," Tindle said, "after this man won. I voted for Harry Truman, but I had given up hope."

At that, there may be a clue in

Hunt Spreads for Escaped Convicts

Reidsville, Ga., Nov. 4 — (UP) — Twenty-five state patrol cars and the full available strength of the Tattall state prison guard staff spread out in a search of 12 escaped convicts still at large after a 15-man break last night.

Warden R. P. Balkcom described the escapees as "notorious and all of them desperate."

They slipped out of the prison under cover of rain and fog last night, using an abandoned tunnel that led under two fences and out to freedom.

Guards missed seeing the prisoners when they emerged from the tunnel outside because of the bad weather, Balkcom said. One guard finally caught sight of them as they fled, and he set off the alarm.

Three of the escaped men were caught almost immediately. They were listed as W. D. Turner, Carl Waites, and Emory Dukes.

Among the 12 still at large was Kenneth Kniff, serving a 240-year total term on 14 robbery counts. Robert Cromker, a "lifer" serving a murder sentence, also fled.

Balkcom warned residents in this area to be on the lookout. All the convicts are "extremely dangerous," he said.

The other fugitives were listed as Henry C. Keller, Roy Acker, Charles Mitchell, Jesse Sullivan, Ed Parker, Bobby Case, Rudolph Chandler, Thomas McCurry, Carroll Evans and David Pattillo.

Better Libraries Indicated for Rural Areas

By United Press
Better libraries in rural areas were approved generally in Tuesday's Arkansas balloting.

A small maintenance tax for such libraries was approved in Lawrence, Jackson, Independence and Conway counties.

However, construction of county hospitals met with varying success. Bradley County approved a plan to build a $400,000 hospital at Warren while Arkansas county voters defeated a similar plan for an institution at Stuttgart.

On other local projects Arkansas county decided to establish a county telephone commission to undertake the purchase of the Southwestern States Telephone Company; voters in Union county approved higher salaries for county officials while Independence county defeated a similar move; and Desha county voters refused to move the county seat from Arkansas city to McGehee.

U. S.-Born Post Awarded the Nobel Prize

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 4 — (AP) — Thomas Stearns Eliot, American-born British poet, was awarded the Nobel prize for literature today.

Born in St. Louis in 1898, Eliot was the first American man of letters since Henry James to adopt British nationality. His father and mother, Henry Ware and Charlotte Chandler Eliot, were descended from early American settlers.

He was educated at Harvard, Oxford, Jena and the Sorbonne. He worked for a time as bank clerk in Boston and then taught at Harvard and Cambridge universities before settling down in London.

His works include "The Sacred Wood," "The Waste Land," and numerous critical essays and collections of poetry.

Eliot at present is at Princeton University.

He is the fourth British author to be awarded the Nobel prize for literature. The previous winners were Rudyard Kipling, George Bernard Shaw and John Galsworthy.

Eliot will receive the prize of 120,773 Swedish kronor (about $49,000) in Stockholm Dec. 10 at the Nobel Awards festival.

Detroit—More than 12,000,000 persons have jammed Nash dealer showrooms throughout the United States in the last week to view the drastically new 1949 Nash "Airflyte" cars, according to H. C. Press, vice-president in charge of Nash Motors sales.

"Reception to the new Nash is almost beyond belief," Press said, in announcing that more than 1,100 telegrams from enthusiastic dealers have poured into administrative offices here.

Expressing graphically the results of elaborate public showings around the country are these excerpts from some of the telegrams: Union City, N. J. (Fuller Motor Co.)—"Admirers have actually worn the paint off our salesroom floor."

Christmas Comes Early for Youngster

Vinton, Ia., Nov. 1 — (UP) — Today was Christmas day at the home of five-year-old Richard Sanquist who is dying of a malignant growth that has already destroyed his eyesight.

Every day will be Christmas for Richard from now until he dies. Doctors say that won't be long. They don't expect him to live until the regular Christmas side this December.

That's why his parents Mr. and Mrs. George Sanquist, promised themselves that they would make every day a holiday for the boy. They started yesterday.

The boy sat with his parents and an older brother and sister as they unwrapped candy, money and toys sent by well-wishers from all over the country.

The boy was solemn until someone unwrapped a bright red fire engine and cranked its little siren. Richard laughed.

"That was the first time he's laughed in a month," his mother said. "It was like Christmas bells."

A regular Christmas tree wasn't available so Richard's father, a salesman, rounded up some evergreen branches and decorated them with tinsel and ornaments. Richard's sister Helen, 12, who lost her sight from the same affliction that is killing Richard, helped decorate the branches. The oldest child of the family, Gerald, 14, also helped.

Salvage Hitler's Steel
Berlin — (AP) — The Russians, who have already removed the marble from Hitler's ruined Reich Chancellery, are now taking its steel ceiling struts. The pink marble from chancellery walls and granite from its foundations went into construction of huge Red Army war memorials. The steel is to be used in construction of a theater at Karlshorst, headquarters of the Soviet military administration.

Richard had wanted an electric train but got a wind-up outfit instead. It came from nine-year-old Larry Valenta of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Valenta, Jr., sent his own toy train when he heard about Richard's desire.

"It's not an electric train," he wrote, "but it's the only one I've got and I want you to have it."
